July 1, 2010

The Distillery Gallery & Artspace, a community forum for contemporary art and creativity in Jersey City, is currently seeking local sponsors for an exhibition featuring new works by artists who live in the Heights.

With “Introducing the Heights” (opening July 17, 2010), we hope to acquaint the public with exciting new work by local artists that stimulates, engages and incorporates the arts into the fabric of life on the Palisades.

Your sponsorship will enable us to continue to bring attention to the Heights as a vibrant source of art and culture, as well as provide opportunities for the public to experience contemporary art created “in their backyard”.

In exchange for your generosity, sponsors will increase their visibility within the Distillery’s regional network of local art and community supporters, be publicized through the exhibition’s print and online media, and be featured on a poster displayed during the opening reception.

Thank you in advance for your attention and support. We hope you consider making a contribution at any level towards the Gallery’s mission.

Sincerely,

Irene Borngraeber
